

The loss of public control or influence over the public airways is a great concern to ordinary citizens. Broadcasting and news today is dominated by just a few economically privileged individuals and corporations while citizen voices are virtually shut out.